OUR LAWRENCE LETTER.

The Viceclaudes of Politics, and Other

Topics.

LAWRENCE, Nov. 12, 1881.

Many of the men who figured prominently in shaping the destinies of Kansas now live among us, scarcely known to exist outside the walls of their own homes. A dozen men can be counted in this city who have at some time been conspicuously identified with the affairs of the State, but who, volunteering their services when the State was in a depressed financial condition, are to-day poor and almost forgotten. As such as has been said about the vicissitudes of politics and the decline of the fortunes of the should be sufficient to check the insatiable desire to lead political lives. An ex-Governor and an ex-congressman are both almost leading the lives of hermits. It was only a short time back that one of the leading New York papers, in speaking of the men who occupied cabinet positions under Lincoln, placed ex-Secretary of the Interior, Caher, on the dead list, but I am sure the Judge would be delighted to match his strength with the writer of that article.

The election here was very hotly contested, and the result was a victory for the Democrats, seeing all the most famous means in hopes of success, the names of the various candidates, with the initials altered, were printed. In spite of this and several other devices, the Democrats carried the election by a good majority. Among the voters was Langston, the colored man, who made a splendid record, and was elected to the state ticket. He allied himself with the Democrats, by whom he was nominated for county clerk, but he was defeated by a handsome majority.

It would be a study for philosophers to observe the sublime manner in which a large number of University students manage to obtain and outgrow a little "down in front," vulgarly called a mustache. It would be difficult to conceive of anything parting more to the aesthetic, and it would be useless to endeavor to explain the manner in which one is obtained, but to tell how it is cultivated by the average student is to describe the process of Dye is never used, being regarded as a mineral of Satan, as it distorts and discolors nature. Nothing is required but the pure nature of the hair, and transmitted to its destination by a simple upward movement of the tongue between the lips. The first act is a new and most important one, and is leading this way, and expects to reach Lincoln by another harvest.

The prospect have never been so bright as now. How glad Lincoln writing the above County Clerk Hammer called in and states that he is gladly yielding to the light of day, and

"let it be red," and it is invariably red. The former is found to be good and allowed to remain, but the latter found to be bad and suffered to linger.

THE RAILROADS.

The corps of Santa Fe surveyors have passed this point in the establishing of their permanent line and are now in the Spillman valley.

The K. P. have a surveying force at work establishing a line and grade stakes, that are near Colorado now and are coming up the north side of the river.

The Kansas Central are on this side of Clay Center with their completed track and are pushing westward as fast as possible, and expects to reach here within ninety days. They are not finishing up their track; but are putting it down anyhow so as to be leveling up afterwards.

The Topeka, Salina &amp; Western is not asleep and will not lose their right to the territory.

It is apparent that with three railroads contesting for the occupation of the Salina Valley, we shall soon get a railroad. The Topeka, Salina &amp; Western has for over a year been preparing to build a line up the valley, and now the Santa Fe has put surveyors upon the field and are making a permanent survey and location of the line. Their surveyors will reach this point in a few days. Then added to the line of the K. P. cannot afford to allow any other company to occupy this country, we have the accumulated evidence that we will hear the wheels of the Topeka, Salina &amp; Western revolving to stand a "big boom" that will lift our town out of the rut and force new life into the veins of trade.
